ROCOL

ROCOL develop, manufacture and market technically advanced industrial lubricants and line marking systems to industries worldwide. ROCOL was founded upon the work of Victor Ivanovitch Ragsine, born in Russia, who took a degree in chemistry at the University of Moscow in 1854. Victor Ragsine developed a yellow lubricating oil which he subsequently sold throughout Europe. Unlike other lubricating methods the yellow oil was virtually non-corrosive making it technically superior to other products available. Rocols ethos remains the same-to create highly technical products of superior quality to the competition, giving you performance you can trust.
